Nazi Guards Sentenced For Life For 113 Sadistic Murders

A West German court sentenced two former Nazi concentration camp guards to a total of 113 concurrent life sentences for 113 murders committed at Hitler's Sachsenhausen camp north of Berlin. The trial of the two men was one of a series of sporadic hit-and-run proceedings which the West German authorities have been carrying out against Nazi war criminals previously not in German courts, says the New York Herald Tribune. The sentences were as follows:

Gustav Sorge, forty-seven, known at Sachsenhausen as "Iron Gustav", received sixty-seven concurrent life sentences — one for each murder of which he was found directly guilty. He also received a further fifteen-year sentence — in addition to the life terms — for inciting or participating in twenty other murders. Wilhelm (Pistol) Schubert, forty-one, received forty-six life sentences, plus a similar additional sentence of fifteen years.

Life imprisonment is the maximum sentence which can be awarded under the postwar West German constitution, which unlike Nazi law, forbids capital punishment. At other recent West German war crimes trials — which have picked up in a somewhat desultory fashion where the Allies left off several years ago — German judges have on some occasions

Says Bias In Housing Results In Nuisance Taxes

The American Jewish Committee charged that widespread discrimination against minority groups in New York's middle-income housing was depriving the city of much-needed tax revenue. A Committee report said that discrimination and a large-scale movement of families to the suburbs were major factors contributing to the city's financial difficulties.

The report was read by Irving M. Engel, president of the Committee and a specialist in real estate law, says the New York Times, at the three-day executive board meeting in the Roosevelt Hotel.

Mr. Engel pointed out that the rising proportion of low-income families in New York was "forcing the city to turn to additional nuisance taxes to raise money to meet its budget for the next fiscal year. Thus proposals have been made recently that New York City enact levies on automobiles for using city highways, taxes on pay-rolls, on overnight parking bank checks, taxicab rides and a host of other normally tax-free activities," he said.

Mr. Engel charged also that in almost every major American city or its suburbs restrictive devices existed to prevent minority groups from buying homes or renting apartments.

He stressed that discrimination in housing "falls most heavily on people who are not white," but he added that discrimination against Jews and other white

Leaders Call On American Jews To Provide Huge Funds For Exodus From Eastern Europe To Israel

The release of large numbers of Jews from East European countries will mean more than 100,000 immigrants to Israel, Mayor Gershon Agron of Jerusalem, told the National Committee for Labor Israel in the Commodore Hotel, in New York.

Mayor Agron pointed out that about 26,000 immigrants were admitted to Israel last year. Jews from Rumania, he said, are now leaving Bucharest for Israel at the rate of more than 8,000 a month, says the New York Times. He said that the wave of immigration from East Europe had reached the rate of 300 a day, or about 100,000 a year.

Mr. Agron declared that for Israel to absorb that number of immigrants in a year was almost beyond belief. "But Israel can make the necessary sacrifices if it means that oppressed Jews can find room within our own country," he said. He noted that the Government of Israel was floating a special internal loan of $11,000,000 to finance the absorption of the expected immigrants.

The Labor Committee reported contributions of $1,850,000 to be used for welfare, vocational training and cultural activities in Israel. The Committee raises funds throughout the United States and Canada for Histadrut, the Israeli labor federation. The money contributed is part of a $5,000,000 drive sponsored by the Committee.

Dr. Dov Blegun, national secretary of the Committee, said the transportation and absorption of new immigrants had always been a responsibility of Israel and of Jews throughout the world. He explained that Histadrut played a major role in the training of immigrants in Israel, provided them with useful jobs, promoted their social and cultural integration, and provided medical care for them.

The United Jewish Appeal opened at Miami Beach, Florida, a two-fold campaign for 1959 to meet Jewish needs the world over. The emphasis in the program is being put on the new immigration emergency confronting Israel, says the New York Times. The Appeal is seeking to raise a $100,000,000 special fund to transport and settle the 100,000 immigrants Israel expects this year from East European countries, particularly from Rumania.

In addition, the Appeal has a regular campaign for $105,065,060 for its customary programs. These seek to help 580,000 Jewish men, women and children, including earlier settlers in Israel, distressed Jews in twenty-four European and Moslem lands and refugees in the United States.

An overflow assemblage of 1,500 delegates at the final dinner session at the Fontainebleau Hotel, heard the leaders of the Appeal and other Jewish leaders call on American Jews to provide maximum funds to cope with the exodus of Jews from these East European countries.

In a cabined message, Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion of Israel expressed the hope that American Jews would "share with us both the great opportunity and immense challenge posed by this fateful emigration trend."

Pointing to his nation's soaring emigration, Mr. Ben-Gurion said: "Our people are hard-pressed but fully determined to keep their pledge to welcome any and all Jews to our shores." He said the newcomers have "special talents and skills" to contribute to Israel's upbuilding but must have housing and other help "before they can stand on their own feet."

The message was read by Morris W. Bernstein, the Appeal's general chairman.

Because of the urgent need created by the large immigration, the United Jewish Appeal of Greater New York is negotiating a credit of $30,000,000 from a number of New York banks. In a message sent to the Appeal at

Distinguished Rabbi, Son Of A Famous Father, Founded U.J.A., Raised Hundreds Of Millions For Needy World Jews

The Rev. Dr. Jonah B. Wise, rabbi of the Central Synagogue, Lexington Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street, in New York, and a leader of Reform Judaism, died at Doctors Hospital after an illness of one week. His age was 77 years. He lived at 8 Hawthorne Way, Hartsdale, N. Y.

A famous son of a famous father, Dr. Wise was called in his last years an "elder statesman" of religion — long a leader of Reform Judaism, long a champion of interfaith relationships, long one of the wizards of a wide-world philanthropy that has brought rescue and relief to millions of distressed Jews.

Rabbi Wise was a founder of the United Jewish Appeal in 1939, when it was decided that the national philanthropic organizations concerned with the relief and rehabilitation of Jews overseas should be merged for a united effort to raise maximum aid in the U.S.

Eight years previously the Joint Distribution Committee had turned to Dr. Wise and asked him to reorganize its program of financial support, says the New York Times. Attempts were made to liquidate the organization, which suffered during the depression years, but Dr. Wise insisted that the organization remain intact.

He served continuously as a national chairman of the U.J.A. from its founding until last year, when he was named honorary national chairman. Under his leadership, the U. J. A., which has the Joint Distribution Committee as one of its principal beneficiaries, raised several millions of dollars to help needy and oppressed Jews in many parts of the world. For a long period before his work with the U.J.A., he held several of the top posts in the Joint Distribution Committee.

From his own conviction, he followed in the footsteps of his father, Rabbi Isaac Mayer Wise, philosopher and preacher. His father founded Reform Judaism in America, calling it "American Judaism." In 1875 he founded Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati, and served as its president until he died at the age of 81.

The son was born on a farm in Cincinnati on February 21, 1881. He graduated from Hebrew Union College and the University of Cincinnati, class of '03. Later he studied at the University of Berlin, Germany, and the University of Bern, Switzerland, then for nineteen years was rabbi of Temple Beth Israel in Portland, Oregon.

For more than thirty-four years Dr. Wise served as rabbi of Central Synagogue, the oldest Reform temple in continuous use in New York. The cornerstone of the temple was laid in 1870 by Dr. Wise's father.

A strong believer in interfaith relations, Dr. Wise was often host to other faiths in the synagogue, says the New York Times. On his completion of a half-century in the ministry, clergymen of other faiths joined in a procession to pay tribute to Dr. Wise.

At that occasion he received a citation from the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion describing him as "one of the most contributive and distinguished leaders of American Judaism of this generation."

On a subsequent occasion the Rev. Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, of Christ Church, Methodist, saluted Dr. Wise as a "friend, a colleague, a great soul, and a man of God." "Jonah Wise," said the Methodist churchman, "has combined local loyalty with large outlooks. While leading a devoted congregation he has extended his ministry to the ends of the earth. His comradeship with other faiths in the service of his community has been matched by his statesmanship in world-wide philanthropy."

Dr. Wise stressed the theme of interfaith cooperation in an article he wrote for The New York Times Magazine on December 12, 1954. He declared then:

"We are living in a period of religious resurgence, a period in which people, more than ever, are turning toward some form of belief which can sustain their courage and their faith in their fellow humans. And there has been a drawing together of different religious groups, an increase of understanding and sympathy of one sect for another."

An essential ingredient of Dr. Wise's philosophy was his conviction

Yiddish-Speaking Dwindle But "Forward" Gets Reprieve

The Jewish Daily Forward announced that agreements had been reached with employees assuring continuation of publication. The Yiddish-language daily earlier had said it would have to suspend on February 8 unless labor costs were reduced.

Alexander Kahn, general manager of the sixty-one-year-old newspaper, said the agreements provided for a reduction of about 15 per cent of the 250 employees and a tightening up on overtime work. He added, however, that operating losses would continue.

Mr. Kahn said that new deficits would be met from reserve funds accumulated when the paper was more prosperous, says the New York Times. The Forward was said to have been losing money in the last four or five years. It is published by the Forward Association, a non-profit organization of dues-paying members.

Mr. Kahn said the newspaper had a circulation of 200,000 fifteen years ago, but it is now down to 80,000. He ascribed the drop to a reduction in the number of Yiddish-speaking people in America.

Brandeis U. Gets Rare Lincoln Portrait By Jewish Artist

A painting, reputed to be the only portrait of Lincoln by a Jewish artist, was unveiled at Brandeis University, at Waltham, Mass., on the birthday of the Civil War President. The Lincoln painting, an oil by Solomon Nunes Carvalho, was discovered in 1952 and acquired by Justin G. Turner, a well known Los Angeles collector of Americana. It is one of only two or three contemporary Lincoln portraits which embody a number of allegorical attributes. In the Carvalho portrait the Capitol appears in the background as a symbol of union, and at one side Diogenes, having at last found an honest man, stands in amazement with his lantern fallen to the ground. Lincoln is holding a scroll on which is visible the words "with malice toward none, with charity for all," from the concluding paragraph of his Second Inaugural address.

The painting was given to Brandeis University by three families: Justin G. and Gertrude Turner, Maurice and Rose Turner, both of Los Angeles, Cal.; and John J. and Celia Mack, of Chicago, Ill. The artist, Carvalho, was born in 1816 in Charleston, South Carolina, of a Sephardic Jewish family. He attained distinction as a professional artist in the middle of the century, and was the official photographer of Fremont's 1853 expedition across the Rocky Mountains. He published in 1856 a book describing the expedition, called "Carvalho's Travels and Adventures." He died in 1887.

The Carvalho painting will be included in the University's permanent art collection. Other memorabilia of Lincoln, including personal articles and reproductions of treasures from his life, will be displayed in a special room dedicated to Abraham Lincoln in the proposed American Civilization Center on the Brandeis campus. The Lincoln Room is the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Kivie Kaplan, of Chestnut Hill, and is one of several rooms in the Center which will immortalize American presidents.

communities of the world where the creative, religious and social forces of the Jewish people can flourish.

Dr. Wise was a pioneer in Jewish religious broadcasting, says the New York Times. He founded the Sunday morning "Message of Israel" radio program in 1934, and he last conducted the program three weeks ago, just before he became ill.

He was the recipient of the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters from New York University, Doctor of Hebrew Law from the Hebrew Union College and Doctor of Hebrew Letters from the Jewish Theological Seminary. In 1928 he became publisher and editor of The American Israelite, a weekly that had been founded in 1854 by his father.

Surviving are a son, David J. Wise, of New Rochelle, N. Y.; two daughters, Mrs. Melvin C. Herzberg, of White Plains, and Mrs. Meyer L. Kaufman, of Hartdale; a sister, Mrs. Jean W. May, of New York; and six grandchildren.

Dr. Wise was an uncle of Mrs. Arthur Hays Sulzberger, wife of the publisher and chairman of the board of The New York Times. The Rabbi's wife, Mrs. Helen Rosenfeld Wise, died in 1950.

One thousand persons attended the funeral service for Dr. Wise in his Synagogue, The Rev. Dr. David J. Seligson, also a rabbi of the synagogue, opened the service with a reading of the Twenty-third Psalm. The Rev. Dr. Theodore C. Speers, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, then memorialized Dr. Wise's work in the field of interfaith cooperation.

Speaking of Dr. Wise as "one of our pre-eminent citizens of the world," Dr. Speers declared that "what holds us all today is not the thought of his public service or even of his religious leadership, but of the bond of affection that bound us to him and him to us."

After referring to the cooperative Thanksgiving Day services that had been held in the past for Dr. Wise's congregation, that of Christ Church, Methodist, and his own, Dr. Speers said that the rabbi had "brought his loving spirit to us."

"We all feel," Dr. Speers continued, "that we have lost an indescribably beloved elder brother, I thank God for Jonah Wise and a special place in my heart will always love Jonah and his lovely wife."

Dr. Maurice N. Eisendrath delivered the eulogy. The service was closed with the singing of the Hebrew memorial prayer for the dead by Frederic Lechner, Cantor of the synagogue, says the New York Times. Honorary pallbearers included Herbert Lehman (in absentia); Edward M. M. Warburg, Monroe Goldwater, Sylvan Gottlieb, Edward Rosenbaum, S. D. Leiderdorf, Dr. James N. Rosenberg, Moses Lowy, Dr. Daniel Davis, Dr. Samuel Hausman, William Rosenswald, Marvin Silbermann, and Dr. Samuel Goldenson.

LEADERS CALL ON AMERICAN JEWS

Miami, Samuel D. Leiderdorf, treasurer of the New York Appeal, said that the borrowing was being negotiated "in the anticipation of massive community support" in Greater New York.

Guests of honor at the dinner were Abba Eban, Israel's Ambassador to the United States, and Jack Benny, the entertainer. Both were cited for their humanitarian services to Israel's people and Jews in need overseas, says the New York Times. Mr. Eban was presented with a small bronze figure of Etruscan origin dating from the Fourth Century B.C. Mr. Benny was given a half-size copy of one of the Dead Sea scrolls now displayed in the Hebrew University in Jerusalem, and of the jar in which the scrolls were found.

Mr. Berinstein announced that eighteen prominent figures in Israel's public life, including Cabinet ministers, would come to the United States soon, at the invitation of the Appeal, to focus attention on Israel's emergency needs in connection with the heavy immigration.

He identified the Cabinet ministers as: Mordecai Bentov, Minister of Development; and Israel Barzilai, Minister of Health. Mr. Berinstein said Mrs. Golda Meir, Israel's Foreign Minister, would also come to the U.S. to address several U. J. A. meetings and to participate in meetings sponsored by the Israel Bond Organization.

The first aid kit, a "must" in home, office, cottage and car, should be kept in sterile condition and should be kept well stocked. Chemicals such as iodine which tend to become concentrated with age and, therefore, less safe to use, should be renewed periodically.

Tired, aching feet can cause fatigue and misery, especially if shoes and hose are not well fitted. Healthy, comfortable feet in correctly fitted shoes, with heels suited to the age and weight of the wearer can help to make walking and standing less tiring.

What Shall Be The Future Of The Zionist Organization?

BY RABBI JOSEPH S. SHUBOW, OF TEMPLE SHAI MOSHE, OF BRIGHTON, MASS.;
HONORARY PRESIDENT OF THE NEW ENGLAND ZIONIST REGION

Zionist dreamers have through six extraordinary decades built up one of the most remarkable movements known not only in Jewish history but in world history. People who used to mock and ridicule the Zionist leaders and workers now stand in amazement at the remarkable achievements of the Zionist theoreticians and would-be impracticable men and women. But now because of the miraculous attainments, whereby apparently idle dreamers have proved to be the most practical men in history, an avalanche of opposition has been unleashed. The opposition is powerful, articulate and well financed.

Manifestly the fault of the Zionist movement and the Zionist organization lies in the singular success and incredible triumph which no other organization in world Jewish history has ever been able to envision, let alone to attain. Thus the old dormant anti-Semitic groups are beginning to come to life again for they have truly regarded the Jews as a dead or an accursed people, and suddenly this moribund national entity emerges phoenix-like from the very fires that sought its destruction and appears in the role of a great epic hero bearing the greatest blessings of God and man.

Only the most faithful among us, only the most pious among our ancestors could have envisioned the possibility of such wondrous realization of our prayers and petitions through the miracle-like emergence of the Jewish State, the heroic manner in which the nascent State was able to drive out its foes and triumph over its enemies in first, a War of Liberation, and second, in a War of Defense. That all this should have transpired virtually on the morrow after nearly a third of the entire people had been brutally done to death constitutes the greatest miracle not only in the history of Israel but in the history of all humanity.

The peculiar dilemma in which we find ourselves as Zionists is because our success has been so extraordinary. We are being subjected to severe assaults and at times even some of our faithful ones are beginning to yield to the hostile and unfounded criticisms. Of course we need not give any attention to the occasional emergence of the old hatreds against our people and of those who cannot understand that we are still alive as a people, as a faith and as a culture. The crude anti-Semitism and their ilk can readily be dismissed as those who are sworn to see the liquidation of the Jewish people.

But a second type of mortal enemy comes from within the Jewish camp and they are our old intransigent, self-hating assimilation Jews who have been most eager to disappear and to be lost in the ingulfing sea of nations and cultures. They have been hoping for a gradual disappearance, if not for a sudden spiritual here-kari, some form of euthanasia or quiet death whereby they and their children would vanish as Jews through assimilation, inter-marriage, conversion, and general, eventual dissolution and disappearance. We have always had this element in our midst ever since we appeared as an historic people with a message for humanity.

Heaven forbid that those of us who have taken the vow to remember Zion as our chief joy should suddenly become disunited and terrorized into the dissolution of our forces by this conspiracy of enemies from without and enemies from within. A liquidation of the Zionist Movement, the head and front of which is the Zionist Organization, would mean the liquidation of the strongest source of spiritual and material strength for the survival of Judaism and Jews in the lands outside of Israel and thus the very existence of the State of Israel would be seriously if not even fatally endangered.

The dissolution of the Zionist Organization would be an irreparable disaster to the future of American and world Jewry and would remove the very well-spring of power and spirit upon which the beloved State of Israel is built. And it should also be better understood that, if this takes place, a most vital moral force will be lost to the world. Assimilation will have scored a great triumph.

We must therefore, recognize the fact that the Zionist spiritual ideal alone has been the greatest deterrent against wholesale defection and general assimilation. Some will argue and contend that it was the Jewish religion that kept the Jews from being lost; but any one who knows the basic ingredients of Judaism must agree that only the fundamental love of Zion and the hope and prayer of a return to Jerusalem were the indestructible elements in the religion of our fathers. This gave them a capacity to resist all allurements and to suffer all shame, humiliation, and agony of body and soul.

The essential purpose of this will to live has been, it must be understood, not only to survive as a people but because Israel and Judaism implied a Messianic ideal for the improvement and education of the human race as a whole, as well as for the betterment of the Jewish people as a single, national entity in the human family. This Messianism, is an indispensable element in the life of our people which is intertwined with our religion and inter-linked with our culture and may yet prove to be the salvation of a sane international society. This is the only way we can explain the martyrdom of our fathers and the zeal and fanaticism of the genuine Zionists who invest membership in the Zionist Organization with an aura of sanctity.

We have therefore a right to expect a new message to come from the authorized spokesmen of the State of Israel who must proclaim and reformulate this ancient ideal which alone has justified our moral and spiritual existence. We must reanimate the Zionist Movement, re-activate the Zionist Organization and recapture something of the old vision, the old glory, the old ideals, for if ever there has been the justification of the program of an organization in history it is the Zionist program, the Jewish spiritual, cultural program, which has been crowned with an extraordinary triumph.

We must therefore appeal to our statesmen in Israel to issue to world Jewry a new proclamation calling upon Jews not only to make financial contributions, to support the United Jewish Appeal, to buy generously the Bonds of Israel, to help the Jewish National Fund and to aid all the institutions in Israel, but there must come a voice from Israel urging American Jews in particular and all Jews outside of Israel to return to the original ideals of Zionism, to join the Zionist Movement, to hold up the hands of Zionist thinkers, leaders and workers outside of Israel, for only in this way can we silence our detractors, reveal their conspiratorial cunning to destroy us as a people.

When the moral, spiritual, cultural, and religious nucleus and kernel of the Zionist ideology and the Zionist Movement are brought into relief and full attention is thus focused upon this unique and indispensable element in the life and religion of the Jewish people, all those who still answer to the name of Jew will readily join the banner of Zion. For only in this way will the Jews appear not only as the builders of their own people and their own Holy Land, but they will thus be garbed in the mantle of the Messianic ideal not as a narrow nationalism but as a broad universal brotherhood wherein Israel will be enabled to maintain a position of honor, dignity and useful service to humanity.

This is what we mean by Zionism and the Zionist Movement. Will our friends in Israel help us and help themselves in this one and only manner? This is the basic problem, a problem which also faces the Jewish people as a whole and also Israel.

minorities still existed in middle and high-priced housing.

Jewish families, he declared, are excluded from more than a third of the desirable cooperatives in Manhattan. The exclusion of Jews from these cooperatives in Manhattan, Mr. Engel said, is a carry-over of discriminatory policies that barred Jews from renting private housing.

Mr. Engel said the discrimination situation in New York was typical of a dangerous trend in many metropolitan areas, reports the New York Times. He declared that in the main, "Negroes, Orientals, Puerto Ricans and Mexican Americans occupy the slums of our cities. In quality, space and value, the homes occupied by non-whites rank far below the general standard of housing in the United States."

The American Jewish Committee is a fifty-two-year-old agency that seeks to combat bigotry, to protect the civil and religious rights of Jews and to advance the cause of human rights.

appeared reluctant to mete out long sentences.

However, the revolting evidence of sadistic mass murder by Borge and Schubert produced by some 160 witnesses during the four-month proceedings at Bonn virtually excluded the possibility of anything but life sentences in this instance.

Both Sorge and Schubert had received life sentences from a Soviet military court in 1948 for the murders of Russian war prisoners, says the New York Herald Tribune. The two were released in 1956 when the Soviet Union released some Germans still held prisoner.

The crimes with which the two men were charged included savagely kicking helpless Jews and other inmates to death and immersing the heads of victims in latrines until they suffocated.

Judge Herbert Schroeder said, in announcing the sentences: "In the opinion of the court, both men were well aware that their victims were sent to the camps for invalid reasons, and that they mistreated and murdered them for equally invalid reasons. They knew that their victims were completely defenseless."
